

Aviv Gerber Bio

Hello. My name is Aviv Gerber. I am a psychologist in training at California Institute of Integral Studies in San Francisco, and I am so excited to be joining Vista for the next academic school year. Originally from Houston, Texas, I lived on the east coast before heading west to Oakland where I have been for the past 13 years.

I actively strive to be anti-racist, LGBTQI+ affirming, and honor neuro-divergence and differences of all kind. I believe in working collaboratively, meeting folks where they are at, and thinking together about what is happening in one's life. I value authenticity and curiosity. I hope to be a facilitative figure for growth and healing. I have an emotional support animal, a dog named Maude who has been by my side for the past 10 years, and together we love to go on adventures and eat snacks. I love to cook, crochet/knit, read novels, and do jigsaw puzzles.

I am excited to build relationships and learn together in this upcoming year, and I look forward to meeting and supporting the students at Vista. I feel grateful and honored to have been invited into such a unique and exciting community. My door is always open, please come say hi.

Go Tigers!
